“We are very excited about her visit. It’s a great opportunity to expand gymnastics around the island,” said Flores. “We just want to expand the sport. We know that worldwide, very few people who go into gymnastics continue it in college, or go to the Olympics. But it’s the best base sport you could have.”

Stooke is the secretary general of the Oceania Gymnastics Union and a council member of FIG, the world governing body for gymnastics. She is also an accomplished gymnast and is an integral part of Gymnastics Australia based out of Melbourne.

Besides meeting members of Guam’s gymnastics community, Stooke will hold coaching clinics and discuss Guam’s possible acquisition of parkour equipment.

Flores said that the Guam federation is looking at including elementary school teachers or those interested in gymnastics or other fun programs to learn from Stooke.

“Gymnastics is the basis of all sports. It teaches balance, strength, coordination, discipline and so much more, so whatever you go into, you’ll benefit,” said Flores.

academic transcripts to UOG Athletic Director Doug Palmer at the start of each semester and sign a student-athlete registration form before they tryout with the different UOG teams. This is the same type of procedure that UOG students must do before they can tryout for the teams as well. All student-athletes must get an athletic physical as well.

Palmer said, “We are truly excited about the GCC students being able to play for the Tritons. We have struggled in some of our sports to have enough participants to play at times and this gives us another option to find players to support our programs.”

GCC had begun to play men’s and women’s basketball and volleyball when UOG re-started athletics back in 2016-17, but had stopped the past few years when they could not find consistent practice times for their teams at the busy UOG Calvo Field House or other locations.

4 sports to 8 sports in the past year and plans to add men’s indoor and beach volleyball for 2023-24 and reach 10 sports for the next academic year. An influx of GCC students should help UOG support a 10 sport athletic program.

The Tritons will have their first tryouts for 2023-24 the 3rd week of August, which is the first week of classes at UOG for the fall of 2023. UOG will begin play in several of their sports around the Labor Day weekend with baseball, men’s volleyball and women’s basketball starting at that time. Other sports will begin play later in September.
