The patient refused to sign the waiver and instead wanted a refund. The clinic was ready to issue a refund upon waiver signature and was primarily concerned about the patient walking around with appliances in her mouth without follow-up care. It was confirmed that the patient was receiving care from another orthodontist, which satisfied the clinic's concern. Consequently, the clinic issued a refund check, which the patient later collected. Dr. Rapadas confirmed that the clinic adhered to the standard of care, and there were no issues with the treatment provided. The patient had since moved to another orthodontist for further care and seemed to be doing well. The Board concluded that the case was
