Concepcion

Climbing the coaching ladder

Concepcion started his coaching career at the same school, but it was upon the conversion from a high school to a middle school.

After a short stint in Santa Rita-Sumai, he moved a bit north where he took over the Jose Rios Middle School program. That is where he connected with good friend Bic Lagutang, and a coaching tandem would blossom from there.

The pair built the new Tiyan Titans basketball program for four years before spending the next seven years back down in 'Talo'fo'fo' with the Notre Dame Royals.

The step to JFK

Concepcion was a volunteer coach under previous coach Rey Serafico. This season, he was given the keys to the program. He said he knew there was something special from the get go.

"We saw the amount of talent that came out on the first day of tryouts," he remembers. "When we got to JFK, we saw the players and how much they wanted to win, so we built it within the same concepts of Candaso. The players bonded really fast. They quickly grasped the concepts we were teaching them."

Other than maximizing the talents led by Collin Rillamas and Tristan Hahn, the difference maker for the Islanders, according to their coach, was sacrifice.

"They committed to the practices and the hard work. Our practices were grueling. I put them in a position where we are going to run and run and run, get our body conditioned so when the mental game comes into play, it won't defeat us."

After their big win over the St. Paul Warriors last Friday for the title, the feeling of being a champion is just now settling in.

"I'm actually starting to feel it now. We were relieved. We went through the gauntlet of what happened. Just watching the boys experience the joy of it, that made us happy."

Bic the sidekick

The "we" that he is referring to is assistant coach Bic Lagutang, who also serves as the JFK junior varsity head coach.

The pair have been together coaching for the better part of 20 years, but the relationship started at Oceanview High playing under Coach Candaso.

"Bic was always a tale when we were seniors," Concepcion recalls of their high school days. "He was the only freshman to hang out with the seniors. The relationship grew and it became family. We are ninos for each other's kids."

Concepcion said Lagutang has been the perfect compliment with the extra set of eyes on parts of the head coach would probably miss.

"When I don't see things, he sees it for me (during the games). He'll pull me to the side and tell me what I don't see and to make adjustments," he said.
