DPHSS Announces Website Redesign and Temporary Holding Page

Hagåtña, Guam – The Department of Public Health and Social Services (DPHSS) is pleased to announce that our official website, dphss.guam.gov, is undergoing a major update and optimization. Starting today, visitors will notice a temporary holding page in place of the original site as we prepare to unveil a refreshed and user-friendly platform.

During this transition, the holding page (dphss.guam.gov) will continue to provide access to the latest press releases, current announcements and the most updated directory of the department. This ensures that essential information remains available to the public while improvements are underway.

The enhanced website is expected to launch within the next three weeks. Once complete, it will offer a streamlined design, improved navigation, and better accessibility to the programs and services that support our island community.

“Our goal is to streamline and optimize our digital presence so that we evolve with the times and meet the needs of our community faster and more efficiently,” said DPHSS Director Theresa Arriola. “This redesign reflects our ongoing commitment to provide clear, timely, and accessible information for the people we serve.”

DPHSS thanks the community for their patience during this process and looks forward to welcoming the public to the new site very soon.
